

CHAIRMAN'S LETTER

Dear Members,

Along with 59 other counties declared disaster areas by Governor Abbott after Hurricane Harvey, Jefferson County has entered into the recovery phase after the storm. Debris piles are being picked up, insurance adjusters and FEMA representatives are reviewing claims. Roofers, electricians and other trades are hard at work trying to put our homes back together. Our local officials, first responders, and the Cajun Navy rescued thousands of people from flood waters, and many continue to work tirelessly in recovery efforts.

While the devastation and massive flooding from this storm will be long remembered, so too will our community spirit and the goodwill of friends and neighbors who have banded together to help one another.

JCHC TIDBITS

- Tyrrell Historical Library remains closed at this time for repairs to extensive damage from Hurricane Harvey.
- Two historical markers have been lost at River Front Park in Beaumont due to flooding of the Neches River from Hurricane Harvey. The markers were for Nancy Tevis and Beaumont, Lumber Mill City of the Nineteenth Century. Thanks to Steven Lewis for alerting JCHC to this loss.
- Due to Hurricane Harvey, the annual October mini-museum exhibit to celebrate Texas Archeology Month has been moved to November 1 – December 15, 2017.
- The Jefferson County Historical Commission is proud to announce that State Regional Archeologist Dr. Kerry Nichols will be speaking in Beaumont about the prehistory and archeology of this area, including McFaddin Beach and the recent dune restoration project. The talk will be held on March 8, 2018 at the McFaddin-Ward House Visitor Center. The Jefferson County Historical Commission and the McFaddin-Ward House are co-sponsors of the event.

BEAUMONT HERITAGE SOCIETY'S PUMPKIN WALK AND HAUNTED HALLOWEEN TOUR

John Jay French House Haunted Halloween Tour

On Saturday, October 21, 2017, the Beaumont Heritage Society hosted a Pumpkin Walk and Haunted Halloween Tour at the John Jay French House Museum.

The event included a pumpkin carving and decorating contest for both adult and child categories. The numerous entries showed creativity, ingenuity, and in some cases, a really scary Halloween flair. The activities included a Haunted tour of the John Jay French House, where the actors used darkness, flashlights, and dramatic storytelling to great effect. The tour was followed by a hay-ride to the French family's cemetery on property during which visitors were treated to apparitions, grave diggers, and a scary blacksmith. Children were then invited to Heritage Hall to decorate their own small pumpkins. The evening was enjoyed tremendously by all attendees, and Beaumont Heritage Society is to be congratulated on another successful event highlighting our area's history.

No Man's Land: East Texas African Americans in WWI

No Man's Land: East Texas African Americans in World War I is a multimedia project—traveling exhibition, mobile phone app, and online research tool—that draws attention to the First World War experiences of East Texan African Americans. Created initially to commemorate the centennial of World War I, it will document the thousands of black Texan men who served as commissioned and non-commissioned officers, infantrymen, cavalrymen, military policemen, mechanics, doctors, dentists, veterinary assistants, lumbermen, chauffeurs, laborers and stevedores, and in a variety of other roles.

November 16, 2017

5:30 pm - 7:30 pm

Join us November 16, 2017 for a special Heritage Happy Hour at the Texas Coffee Company! This family run company began in Beaumont in 1921 when Charles J. Fertitta, Sr. recognized the demand for a good quality coffee. In 1926, Mr. Fertitta recapitalized the company by forming a partnership with R. C. Maceo and Joseph S. Serio. In 1968, Texas Coffee Company became the first coffee company in the United States to begin packaging coffee in vacuum-packed foil bags ~ now the industry standard. Come learn how an investment of $1800 and a Ford Model-T truck were the beginnings of this beloved Beaumont manufacturer and distributor of Seaport Coffee, Texas Coffee, and TexJoy Spices. Larry D. Baggett (1956-2015) was born in Beaumont and was a long-time area educator. Through his extensive research and detailed drawings of historic buildings in Southeast Texas, Larry has left a lasting legacy. His sister, Linda Baggett McLemore, has set up a scholarship in his honor and is selling prints and card sets of Larry Baggett's artwork to fund the scholarship. If you are interested in obtaining prints, please contact the JCHC office for Linda Baggett McLemore's contact information.
